Black Creek Appoints New Software Developer

Birmingham, AL – January 13, 2017 – Ben Hunt has joined Black Creek as a Software Developer for the company’s Criminal Justice Application Group (CJAG). The department is responsible for developing the software used in Black Creek correctional applications, such as its SallyPort® Jail Management System.

Ben holds two bachelor’s degrees in Computer Science and English. While attending university, Ben was successful in completing several large-scale group projects with tight deadlines.

Computers have always been a point of interest for him and he is excited to begin a career that involves continuous learning. “We are very excited to have Ben join our team as a new software developer.” said Tommy Alfano, Vice President of Black Creek’s Criminal Justice Application Group. “He certainly has a lot of potential and I look forward to his contributions to our department.”
